

To run or not to run

Murphy still undecided on political future

By WALT HECOX

First District Supervisor John D. Murphy, the Livermore-Amador Valley's voice on the county board, told the Times Monday morning he has not yet decided whether or not he will seek reelection next year.

The announcement was not unusual from the man who has held the First District seat for the past 16 years.

Murphy has been reluctant to run in each of his four successful elections and has sought the office only after considerable urging by his constituents.

He admits he has been "under constant pressure" from his supporters recently, all of them insisting that he run again.

Murphy says he is more reluctant than ever to seek re-election for a variety of reasons.

Although it is strictly conjecture, the most frequently mentioned reason for Murphy's cautious approach to the 1976 election revolves around his family and the health of his wife.

The supervisor said he would probably be ready to make an announcement sometime in September.

Meanwhile he is not willing to discuss a probable successor.

"Every time I mention another name I am told the only one my supporters will accept is mine," he declared.

Murphy has held his first district seat since his appointment by Governor Edmand G. Brown more than a decade and a half ago following the death of Chester Stanley.

He has been elected four times since that appointment.

Murphy was considered a liberal Democrat at the time of Brown's appointment and though he has not changed his views in any way the changing mores of the intervening years now place him in the position of being considered one of the few conservative Democrats with any chance of winning the south county seat.

JOHN D. MURPHY

By the time the election rolls around there is a good chance the county will have been reapportioned and the candidate for Murphy's seat will probably serve an area including the Livermore-Amador Valley and Fremont, with Newark and Union being trimmed from the district.

The ranks of voters for and against Murphy are sharply divided. Those who oppose him are vocal and dedicated.

But those who support him are equally determined. One Hayward businessman remarked last week, "Don't even try to ask me for another candidate. Murphy is the only possible man for the job."

The pressure from such people has been constant recently and is growing. Murphy, meanwhile, is approaching the day of decision with little enthusiasm.

Kinney announces 90 day delay

City backs off on redevelopment

PLEASANTON — In the wake of vociferous and widespread opposition to the proposed redevelopment plan, Mayor Ed Kinney announced Monday the city council will not make a decision on that plan for at least 90 days.

The council had originally scheduled a public hearing on the controversial redevelopment plan for Aug. 11 and, although they will take testimony on the plan that night, they will not make a decision on whether to adopt it.

As the timetable stands now, that decision will be made in early November.

The city has scheduled a series of informational sessions to explain the workings of the redevelopment plan to citizens but many questions remain and Kinney said, the decision to postpone action was made because "more time for the dissemination of factual information as well as further public discussion was required."

Kinney added he hoped "the public will take full advantage of this time in order to become fully informed and educated regarding the contents of the plan."

Some of those opposed to the redevelopment plan have organized into "Citizens Against Re-Development" (CARD) in order to give the protest movement some clout.

That group is asking some fundamental questions of the entire concept of redevelopment, although their main concern appears to be a fear of what will happen to their properties that are included within the district's boundaries.

That group — and much of the unorganized opposition — is philosophically divided between those who are opposed to redevelopment in any form and under any circumstances and those who are opposed now because they believe all of the impacts of redevelopment have not yet been assessed. The latter faction might eventually support the concept if their questions are adequately answered.

In his statement Monday, Kinney emphasized, "The proposed plan does represent a way to finance the large number of capital improvement deficiencies that will benefit the Central Business District."

He added he hoped "citizens will keep an open mind regarding the merits and benefits of the proposed plan" during the next several months.

Zeno's only no vote

Burr proposal gets commission nod

Alameda County Bureau

Barring an appeal to the Alameda County Board of Supervisors, Edwin Burr's proposed subdivision along Sunol Ridge will be built.

That happy news — to Burr, at least — came yesterday afternoon in Hayward as six Alameda County Planning Commissioners voted to overrule Planning Director William Fraley's decision to deny Burr's application.

The only dissenting vote came from James Zeno, whose objection stemmed from the steep and windy access road, which he termed "definitely hazardous".

Burr's plan calls for eight homes on 100 acre lots on Sunol Ridge above Killcare Canyon Road with access from Foothill Road. That access road will contain a stretch with a 23 per cent grade as well as several sharp turns.

One of the 21 conditions laid down by the planners calls for a control gate of unspecified nature to keep unauthorized persons from using the road.

If an accident occurs on the private road that is determined to have been caused by faulty road design, the county could be liable for damages since the planners have approved it.

The road squabble may be the issue that sent the matter to the board of supervisors. Of the six grounds for appealing a planning commission decision, one is that substantial danger to public health has been ignored.

Opponents of the development must file an appeal within 15 days and it is estimated that the supervisors would hear the matter within 30 days after the filing of the appeal.

Planning Commission Chairman William Carpenter admitted "We're aware of the fact that this is not the ideal road" but he and the commissioners did uphold a planning staff requirement that the road be built and the gate put up before any lots are sold.

Five year period

Library loses 4,331 books

DUBLIN — The Dublin High School library has suffered the "staggering" loss of 4,331 books in the last five years.

The statistic came to light Friday as part of a report that Amador Valley Joint High School District trustees will review Tuesday night.

Librarian Elizabeth Henry says the current replacement cost per volume (on the average) is $8.50. Thus, the library has lost far in excess of $30,000 in books over the past five school years.

The losses have spurred a survey of the solutions to a cutting if not eliminating of the problem.

Control of books at the Dublin High library is "extremely difficult" according to district spokesmen because of the circular architectural design of the building.

Two control systems have been evaluated by the library staff.

According to Doug Rose, director of fiscal services, Checkpoint appears to be the system most applicable to the school's needs at the least cost. The bid, as proposed, will require 12,000 protective inserts, together with an electronic screening device.

Additionally, two manually-operated entrance turnstiles and one electronically-controlled exit turnstile will be provided. There are also control railings and emergency exit cords to complete the system.

The library staff has also investigated installations in several school districts, including Tennyson High in Hayward, Homestead High in Cupertino, St. Mary's College and Livermore High.

Livermore has installed the Checkpoint system and it has been in operation almost one year.

T T COST Livermore $7,500, including 20,000 printed circuits. The installation includes screens and an exit turnstile. The library took out a bank loan and paid for it over three years out of the library budget.

In the Livermore system, books have to be handled by library personnel every time the student leaves the library.

Livermore chose the Checkpoint system because it was considerably less expensive than competing systems, according to Rose.

Tennyson and St. Mary's utilize the Tattletale-dubbed installation system.

OLD ST. RAYMONDS with bicentennial flag.

Bicentennial center

New flag over Dublin

There's a new flag flying over historic Old St. Raymond's, on Donlon Road in Dublin. The flag is the white standard with the bold red, white and blue emblem of Bicentennial '76.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Amador-Livermore Valley Historical Society, the Bicentennial Commission of Alameda County was given permission to use the old church as a base of operations for the balance of this year through 1976.

It was loaned with the understanding that the office usage would in no way hamper the continued restoration of the century-old structure.

Work will continue restoring the altar portion and re-staining and replacing the pews and displaying and dispensing historic materials.

In addition, historic bicentennial literature and paraphernalia will also be available. Flags, posters, decals, bumper stickers and a special Time Magazine issue are already being sold.

Sure to become a collector's item is The Memorabilia Collection selling for $1.50 a set. It includes three color prints and reproduction of a letter from Benjamin Franklin plus a reproduction of the first U.S. stamp.

This may be bought at Old St. Raymond's, or ordered by mail by writing to the Alameda County Bicentennial Commission, P. O. Box 2001, Dublin, Calif 94566.

In addition, you can also order a unique Philatelic Passport which contains suggestions for historical sites to visit in your area. As you visit them, you place a postage stamp on a page of the Passport, then present it at any U.S. Post Office. They will hand-cancel the stamp for you, showing location and date. This unusual Passport will be your personal history of the Bicentennial.

Visitors are welcome to the old church Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Members of the Bicentennial commission, under the direction of Marie Cronin, will be happy to answer any questions about how citizens may participate in the planning of the Nation's birthday.

Persons or organizations interested in volunteering time at the site should call 828-7471. Profit realized from the sale of items will benefit projects planned for the 1976 celebrations now in the planning stages.

seven plans that have been proposed include those two "communities of interest" in one district.

In addition, it appears a "minority district" may be carved out of the Berkeley, west Oakland area and that is one of the reasons Bates, who would be an incumbent in that district, has chosen not to run.

Bates, 37, who was elected to the board in 1972, said he had made a commitment to his constituents in 1972 to work for creation of such a "minority district."

It would be unfair, Bates added, for him to run as an incumbent in a district with a large minority faction because it would give him an unfair advantage.

In addition, Bates said the fact that Meade has announced he will not run for re-election "gives me a perfect opportunity to seek higher office."

The new district lines the board hopes to draw tonight will be in effect until 1981, unless the voters approve a change in the county charter which will create two additional supervisory districts. In that event, the lines would be redrawn again, probably in 1978.

The supervisors' hearing on redistricting will begin at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Alameda County Administration Building, 1221 Oak St.

Plan to go into effect next June

Supervisors hope to redistrict tonight

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The Alameda County Board of Supervisors will attempt to select an equitable redistricting plan tonight that will be in effect for the June 1976 election.

The terms of Supervisors Don Murphy, who represents the valley, Tom Bates and Joe Bort will expire at that time.

Bates announced late last week he would not seek re-election to the board but, rather, would go after Assemblyman Ken Meade's 12th District seat.

Neither Bort nor Murphy have announced whether they will seek re-election.

The supervisors have a variety of plans to choose from, all of which keep the Livermore-Amador Valley intact. Indications are the valley will be included in a district with Fremont. All but one of the

AVSEA board raps legislature

DUBLIN — The Amador Valley Joint High School District Board of Trustees will be asked to support a "resolution of condemnation" tonight alleging "callous disregard for the current educational funding crisis" on the part of both the State Legislature and Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr.

Formulated and already approved by the executive board of the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association, the resolution is expected to be presented tonight when the high school district board convenes at the Dublin High School library at 7:30. Tonight's regular monthly meeting will open with the annual public hearing on the budget. The budget totals $7.98 million.

The Pleasanton Elementary School District board will meet Wednesday night at 7:30 in the District Educational Center board room to hold a public hearing on its $6.3 million budget for 1975-76.

Jim Eaton of AVSEA told The Times Monday the California Teachers Association chapters in the Alameda region are trying to get unified action on the part of school boards, teachers and parents to underscore what they believe is a severe school finance crisis both locally and throughout the state.

Eaton said the level of state support to public school districts has dropped down to approximately 37 per cent of total budget funding.

"We are now back to pre-SB 90 levels and it means the local taxpayer will be shouldering more and more of the burden."

Now chairman of the social studies department at Foothill High School, Eaton said the AVSEA executive board had passed the following "resolution of condemnation":

The Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association recognizes the responsibility of the Board of Education of the Amador Valley Joint Union High School District to offer the best possible instructional program to the district's students and to compensate its employees fairly and equitably in order to foster and maintain a high level of morale and efficiency.

The AVSEA further recognizes that in order to fulfill these responsibilities, the Amador school district must have available to it a reasonable level of funding. Such funding is presently an integral part of state law and is under the direct control of the California Legislature and Governor.

The refusal of the Legislature and Governor to enact adequate school finance legislation has prevented the Board of Education from fulfilling its responsibilities to both the district's students and its employees as witnessed by the 1975-76 school budget adopted on August 5, 1975.

The AVSEA therefore condemns the California State Legislature and Governor for their callous disregard for the current educational funding crisis in this state and further demands that the Governor and Legislature immediately address themselves both to the issue of providing a realistic funding base for California's school districts as well as providing the means for districts to incorporate in their salary schedules cost of living increases at least equal to those awarded state employees by the Legislature and Governor.

The wording on the resolution to be presented to the Amador board is virtually identical.

VCSD board to hear about Pleasanton's redevelopment

John Bowling, the Deputy Director of the much-maligned Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency, will give the Valley Community Services District Board of Directors a presentation on that agency at tonight's VCSD meeting.

Bowling will appear at 7 p.m., a half hour earlier than the normal starting time, to give his report at VCSD's

County planners expect 1990 valley population to reach 150,000

Alameda County Bureau

The Alameda County Planning Department expects that valley population will jump 46 per cent between now and 1990, it was revealed at yesterday's planning commission meeting in Hayward.

Ken Decker of the planning department gave a brief report on the employment status in the valley, mostly based on figures from the 1960-1970 years.

One aspect of the report was the percentage of residents employed within the valley, which Decker estimated at 50 per cent. Under questioning by Planning Commissioner George Spiliotopoulos, however, Decker admitted that most of those employed in the valley earned secondary incomes.

Primary wage-earners normally work outside the valley, Decker conceded. However, the planners expect that as the valley population increases to the 1990 projected figure of 157,000, the number of locally-employed workers will rise faster than the population.

The anticipated 3 per cent per year growth rate is over 50 per cent less than the 7 per cent per year growth rate of the past few years, Decker reported.

The largest single employer in the valley is the government, said Decker, which accounts for over 9,000 employees. The Lawrence Livermore Laboratory contributes almost half of that amount.

Research-related industries such as Sandia and General Electric are second on the list, with wholesale and retail trade third and agricultural trade fourth.

Decker stated, "Manufacturing is not one of the growing sources of employment in the valley" but that reflects a nationwide trend, he concluded.

His report ended on a bright note, as he said "There should be a substantial increase in employment in the valley".

Livermore man suing the city

LIVERMORE — A Livermore man whose drivers license allegedly was mistakenly taken from him by a city police officer has filed a $1,344.60 claim against the city for damages incurred as a result of the incident.

The local man, Michael Burns of 2333 First St., claims he lost earnings amounting to $344.60 because he lost his job until his license was returned to him by the Livermore Police Department. He also claims he incurred $1,000 in general damages.

The claim, which also names the State of California as a defendant, is based on "the willful and lawful taking of claimant's drivers license from his possession...thereby causing him to lose his job until his license was returned."

The claim alleges Burns' license was taken from him on the supposition the license had been suspended by the Department of Motor Vehicles "when, in fact, the license was not suspended."

The claim, dated July 30 and filed by Livermore attorney Earl Odell, has been forwarded to the city's insurance broker, E.E. "Gene" Morgan, for further action.

Matt Schraeder sits atop his dirt bike and shows some of the 107 signatures he collected urging Pleasanton to build a cycle park.

Matt wants one

Cycle park at fairgrounds?

PLEASANTON - What do you do if you're 13-years-old, own a 125-cc. dirt bike and have no place to ride?

Matt Schraeder is tired of sneaking his cycle down to the fields behind Pleasanton Sports Park, being threatened by older cyclists, and finally chased out by police.

And it's hard convincing his dad to travel out to Carnegie Park in Livermore more than once a month, which is hardly enough to satiate a cycling enthusiast's appetite.

"I just want a place to ride my bike without getting hassled," the polite young man said.

Matt would like a small cycle park established in the fairgrounds, where one existed about two years ago but ceased operation.

He first went to the Recreation Dept. with the problem, and found several sympathetic but skeptical ears.

"We looked at several possible sites over a period of time, including the fairgrounds, some gravel sites and some private property," said Jerry Wilfley, a park and recreation commissioner.

Matt talked to me Wednesday and I told him it didn't look good, but if he was really interested, to form a group and we'd listen to their proposals.

Peter Bailey, assistant manager of the fairgrounds, said the cycle park was closed because bigger cycles came in, scared horses, and tore up the grounds.

"Some cyclists came on the grounds that were off-limits to cycles and were harassing everybody. We want to keep it enjoyable for families, and this was being threatened," he said.

Fairground directors would probably consider a cycle park again only if cycles were muffled, limited in size and contained in a roped-off area, Bailey said.

Matt feels the park would not only end cyclists' illegal use of private property, but also lessen police enforcement problems, concentrate the noise in one area so sound barriers could be erected and safety rules could be enforced.

"At a park, we would be required to wear helmets, long pants and boots, and our cycles would have to have spark arrestors, mufflers and off-road stickers," he said.

Matt acknowledged that the constant fear of being busted was a major force in his drive for a park.

"Police run us off wherever we try to ride," he said. "People see us riding and phone the police. They think if they call the police, that will settle the problem."

"The police treat you nice unless you try to run from them. Then they chase you, and I saw them confiscate one guy's motorcycle," he said.

Captain Ronald Nelson of the Pleasanton Police Dept. said that off-road cyclists are not bothered unless a complaint has been registered by property owners for trespassing or excessive noise.

"We're usually going after the off-road cyclists for the noise complaints," Nelson said. "This year we haven't had as many complaints as in past years, but I don't know what to attribute it to."

Nelson said much of the riding now going on occurs in dry creek beds and canals around Pleasanton. He acknowledged that Carnegie Park in Livermore is the only legal place to ride "in the dirt" legally.

"We tell them it's illegal, and sometimes we notify their parents. Occasionally we transport their cycles back to the station simply because it's illegal to ride them on the streets. The parents are called in and the cycle is returned to them," he said.

Nelson said no driver's license is needed to operate a cycle off the street, and so kids of any age can legally ride them on private property or public dirt parks. A $15 off-road sticker, good for two years, is required of all cycles, but can be secured by the youth's parents.

Matt's visit to the Recreation Dept. found a more optimistic friend in Supervisor Dan Diez.

"I think it's a fine idea to have a cycle park locally. They're riding all over anyway. I just don't know if such a place can be found," he said.

Diez helped Matt draw up a petition urging the city to consider establishing a dirt park for off-road cycles. The petition reads:

"We the undersigned hereby petition the city of Pleasanton to seriously consider aiding a number of youth in Pleasanton by assisting in providing an area within Pleasanton for the recreational activity of dirt riding of motorcycles."

"Because no such facility or park exists presently, many youth now illegally ride in areas which are neither safe nor acceptable to the public or the rider."

Matt promptly set out to collect signatures for his cause, and in less than five hours had secured 107 endorsements from local citizens. In that period, only 12 people turned him down, most upon hearing the word "motorcycle," without reading or understanding the petition, Matt said.

His face lights up as his thoughts turn to Saturday.

MacDill AFB

Air Force Staff Sergeant Michael E. Welham, son of retired U.S. Navy Chief Petty Officer and Mrs. Albert E. Welham of 2374 Sandpiper Way in Pleasanton, is serving at MacDill AFB in Florida with a unit of the Air Training Command.

A 1964 graduate of Clayton Valley High School in Concord, his wife, Julie, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Nutter of 22 River St., Dover-Foxcroft, Maine.

"My parents are taking me up to Pinecrest this weekend to ride!" he said excitedly, as the problems of the present are quickly whisked away, burying for a moment the long job ahead of him.

"I really admire Matt," said Diez. "He's young and very determined. He really feels a facility like this should exist, and I respect him for his efforts."

Reapportionment hearings tonight

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Public hearings on proposed reapportionment of supervisorial districts and on possible reductions in revenue sharing and social service programs will provide a lively agenda for the Alameda County Board of Supervisors Tuesday night.

The supervisors will resume their experimental evening meetings tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Alameda County Administration Building, 1221 Oak St.

The supervisors have more than half a dozen redistricting alternatives to choose from and they are hopeful one of those proposals or a modification thereof will be adopted tonight.

The redistricting will be in effect for next June's election, at which time the terms of Supervisors Don Murphy (who represents the valley), Tom Bates and Joe Bort expire.

The proposed cuts in revenue sharing programs and social service programs, including mental health, drug abuse, alcoholism and social services were prompted by a reduction in the amount of state money that is available this year to support those programs.

So, what's new?

WALNUT CREEK - Seven Valley babies arrived at John Muir and Kaiser Hospitals in the last two weeks of July.

John Muir reports that Michael and Susan Williams, 4531 Rice St., Livermore, welcomed a daughter July 18. It was a boy for John and Linda Rowell, 105 Avocado Court, San Ramon on the 21st.

At Kaiser, arrivals included: July 19, a boy to Nancy and John Burke, 7541 Pepper-tree Road, Dublin, and a girl to Joyce and Steve Smith, 1906 Laughlin Road, Livermore.

Dance class Saturday show scheduled at Nissen

LIVERMORE — May Nissen Park will be alight with dancing this Saturday afternoon.

Eight girls of four to 11 years old, and their teen-aged volunteer dance teachers, want to share with the world what they've been sharing among themselves all year: the fun of acrobatics, jazz and hula dancing.

The show will be complete with amplified music — courtesy of a boyfriend — and handmade costumes. It starts at 1 p.m. in the park and everyone's invited, free.

The show will be the climax of a year-long project started by Sue Deaton, a June graduate of Granada High who plans to attend Chabot next year.

One of Sue's extra-credit projects for her Civics course, last fall, was to do something for the community without pay.

Sue loves dancing and studied it for several years. So she thought it would be fun to offer free dancing lessons to all the little girls in her Somerset West neighborhood.

Sue's sister, Misty, and a friend, Beth Gannon, thought it would be fun to join in. Both were Junction School eighth-graders who will be attending Granada in the fall.

The little corps of prospective dance teachers knocked on doors in the neighborhood, collecting girls who had never had a lesson. Monday after school was the time, and the Deaton house was the place they spent a year working on dance techniques.

Parents are uniformly delighted with their daughters' progress in poise and grace through the free lessons. They're also delighted to know there are teen-agers in Livermore who are not only willing but eager to spread around something good without expecting anything in return.

The idea of a public performance was suggested by Sue's memories of dancing at nursing homes and in public auditoriums in Santa Clara, where she used to live and where she studied dance.

Getting ready for the performance was a big undertaking because it involved getting permission from the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District to use May Nissen; borrowing their outdoor wiring; borrowing amplifiers; making all the performers' costumes by hand; typing up programs and invitations; and most of all, raising money to pay for the costumes.

A donation of two dollars from each parent helped. So did Sue's babysitting money, which went right into the fund, as well as money Misty and Beth earned.

"We really worked hard to get this on the road," Sue reflected. "And now I'm getting really nervous!"

But she says she's glad her civics project turned into a year-long dancing school. "It helped me make up my mind to go back and study to become a dancing teacher," she reported yesterday, as the little girls were assembling for a dress rehearsal. "The kids are really happy, and that helped me, too."

Now semi-isolated cafe, garage still draw many loyal customers

Story by Al Fischer

Marie Guasco reflects over 41 years in garage, cafe business out on Santa Rita.

Photos by Peter Griffith

Solid, no frills dishes are served-up by Arlene Voudry at Santa Rita Inn.

On a quiet stretch of road, not far away, the 40s and 50s live again

It is a place time has passed by but continues to live because it fulfills basic needs.

An everlasting reminder of the 40s and 50s resides here in the form of the Santa Rita Garage and Santa Rita Inn. They are the remnants of a time that produced Burma Shave jingles along the highway, the "Giant Orange" rest stops and fruit and vegetable stands beside the road.

Hub caps hang from the ceiling, a portable TV grinds out the endless morning game shows and flies dart about the nondescript little building that Marie Guasco uses as "operations central" for the family's garage business.

The Roi-Tan boxes are scattered about, serving as files or temporary resting places for parts, the Alka Seltzer thermometer registers near 80 degrees and one only has to peer out through the open doorway to the gravel yard and "Old Santa Rita Road" to see it's going to be another scorcher.

The calendars all say August, but from inside the cement-floored little hut where Marie lights another cigarette and fields the constant stream of calls, it could be '48 or '55 or '75.

Son Richard, a garage man and ex-hot rod mechanic and racer, has been "in the business" since the days when he took his first steps some 38 years ago.

He has been around the country's race tracks and then some.

His business now is the garage...towing, parts and a hundred other related duties that off-times make Saturday and Sunday just another working day.

Richard grew up in his dad Rusty's tow truck. The latter, who died six years ago, will be remembered by hundreds of valley residents.

Across the gravel yard, the pickups and trucks begin to congregate as lunch time nears.

Chicken fried steak is king. It is the piece-de-resistance on a menu that begins with p a n c a k e s or ham-and-eggs-over easy at 7 in the morning and continues through 'burgers and a cold one at mid-day to the heartier repasts at 6 or 7 in the evening.

Arlene Voudry, who has lived in Pleasanton 21 years, presides over the grill along with another lady, sometimes one of her grandsons, and her son Lindsay "Buddy" Voudry.

She and her husband originally had the cafe for a year-and-a-half back in the late 50s, taking it over from Tony and Dorothy Rigoni. Arlene reminds that Tony was formerly a police sergeant.

It was sometime during that stint in the late 50s that Santa Rita Road and the highway access to the cafe and garage was sealed off forever.

Marie and Richard remember the highway days with a certain amount of sentimentality but prefer to keep abreast of the present and future. Because as soon as they drift back to those days the jarring sound of the buzzer will most certainly bring them back to the here and now...signaling the location of a part to pickup, a car in distress or maybe a friend with a complicated mechanical problem that needs solving.

Arlene and her husband started their valley restaurant ventures in Livermore. At one time or another they ran the Tally Ho, Rock House and cafe concession at the bus depot. They also operated the Country House night club along with Louie Caruso, who has since returned to New York.

The Voudrys are from New York where they once had a clam bake business across from Caruso's business. Arlene's customers are primarily truck drivers, long haulers, some of the Safeway employees from down in the Amador Center and gravel truck operators. If truck drivers are the gourmets of roadside diners, then the Santa Rita Inn will have to rank on the list of "must" places to eat.

Arlene notes that a lot of people come out to the Inn from town and the drivers will wait outside the door in the morning if she's late.

Now that's loyalty! The cafe is really something out of a Hollywood director's script...remindful of the movie "Bus Stop". The pinball machine gets a good play and one, in fact, keeps waiting for a bus or some sort of conveyance to pull up in front.

The Guasco's have owned the garage and cafe since February of 1934. In the early days, the lunch counter was on the corner of the road frontage property.

"I always tell people that Richard is the manager. He operates the tow truck and takes it home at night. Wife Doty does the bookkeeping so it is a family affair like so many other long-established businesses in the valley."

"We have calls for parts from all over," comments Marie. "We belong to the parts locator system. Towing used to be the first one that go there but now it's in rotation...unless the customer requests a specific operator."

Richard was in drag racing for 15 years, three years professionally. He worked with or drove cars at tracks next to the big track at Indy, in Tulsa, Texas, New Mexico and throughout the Midwest.

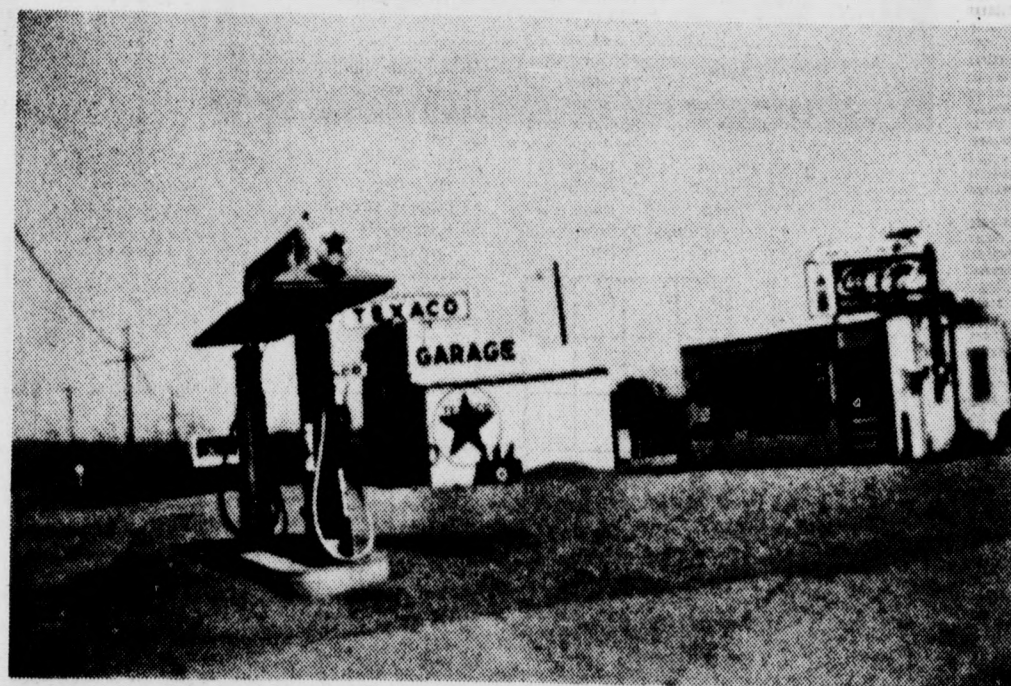

Though still relatively young, he is a throwback to the days when drag racing drew a special breed that made "the car" a major part of their lives.

Hot rod racing is now more a memory.

Just like those days in the 40s and 50s when the Santa Rita Garage and Santa Rita Inn catered to the main thoroughfare traffic that buzzed by the then-sleep little communities of Pleasanton, Woods Acres, Dublin and Livermore.

Richard Guasco presides over parts, towing service at venerable Santa Rita location.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You're unlikely to get all benefits you're entitled to today. In haste to finalize matters, you'll settle for second-best.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Don't try to make an important decision today unless you have all the facts. Your hunches aren't too reliable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
One you're fond of who seldom returns things may ask to borrow something again today. Review her record mentally before agreeing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Something you feel you're entitled to is likely to be awarded to one you think is less deserving today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You'll achieve what you go after, but you may use some unbecoming tactics. Be careful whose toes you tread upon.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Don't look to friends to bail you out of tight spots today. They'll be too concerned with their own problems.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Success in your endeavors will not come easily today. If you want to make it, you'll have to be bold and tenacious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
No one will think less of you if you ask to have something important re-explained because you didn't grasp it at first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Today you may be tempted to put good money after bad to save something that you might be better off without, even at a loss.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You tend to let others overly influence your thinking today. What's good for them is not necessarily in your best interests.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You're still not operating at peak efficiency, workwise. Mistakes today will be of your own making.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
It's not a good day to take any risks. What may appear to be easy pickings could be attached to a very thorny stem.

Your Birthday

Aug. 5, 1975

You'll find ample opportunity this coming year to put your enterprise and initiative to work. There's a rung at the top of the ladder waiting for you.

Most squeezes are rather simple. All you need, to have a squeeze possibility, is all but one of the tricks in the form of high-card winners and potential low-card tricks in two suits. Then, whether or not you know how to count a hand if you just run off all your high-card winners you may find that one of your low cards has become high.

East starts off the defense by cashing two hearts. Then he shifts to the king of diamonds. South takes his ace and is

Little red gas wagon

Guaranteed to be easy on fuel, this gas powered wagon was built in one night by (left to right) Darren McCullough, Alan McInnis, and chief mechanic David McCullough, all of Pleasanton. "It'll do 15-20 easy," David declared proudly. The clutch, wrenched from a dying washing machine, insures the wagon "really cleans up."

Fundamentalist newsletter hits 'foot dragging' foes

LIVERMORE — "What are they afraid of?"

That's what Citizens for Better Schools (CBS) members want to know about people who are opposed to starting a fundamental school in Livermore.

CBS is a local organization, about 250 members strong, who put out a small newsletter and whose members watchdog the school system.

This month's newsletter, mailed out Thursday, takes off against school trustees and administrators who are not moving along very fast in establishing the requested new school because of educational and legal misgivings.

"Who would have thought that the proposal for a fundamental school in Livermore would have produced such hysterical outpourings from some segments of the community?" the first-page article begins.

"Could it be that the proponents of experimental educational programs will have to prove that their programs do indeed accomplish what they claim?"

"Could it also be that the request for a fundamental school was instigated by parents instead of 'profession educators'?"

The article concludes, "How about quitting the 'nit-picking' and let the Fundamental School Committee work without all the 'snide' comments. Fundamental School Committee members are not trying to dictate to the rest of the district how their programs are run, so why should the opposition dictate how the Fundamental School is to operate?"

The newsletter, put out by many of the same people who started the fundamental school movement a few months ago in Livermore, comes close on the heels of a school board meeting at which fundamental committee members lost an attempt to clip ahead with their project.

School board members — or at least some of them — as well as administrators appeared uneasy about a plan that would pre-empt a neighborhood school and force families in the neighborhood into a 'like it or leave it' situation.

In fact, said Superintendent of Schools Leo Croce, the plan goes against two district policies and the stipulation that parents must guarantee their backing of the program in writing could be illegal.

School board member Ken Englund didn't want to adopt a board philosophy unless it was designed by the district's professionals rather than by a citizens' committee. So, the committee's report went back to the drawing board for some changes.

The committee is hoping to open a fundamental school by next September. Proponents say its program is no more extreme in the conservative direction than an open-space school is in the opposite way and that the idea of having a relatively neutral type of program in every neighborhood is little more than a myth.

One reason the problem has come to a head is because in previous pre-overcrowding years a parent who wanted his child in an open classroom, or vice versa, could simply transfer the child out of one school into another. Now, the district is "Full to the gunwales," as Superintendent Leo Croce put it, and most pupils are more or less stuck in their assigned schools.

Graduation day for fledgling hunters

GARY BELL and his able assistants, Mrs. Gary Bell and Mrs. George Orloff, gave the final examination to a large class of Hunter Safety graduates last Saturday. The courses, held at the Livermore-Pleasanton Rod and Gun Club, have been held almost continuously since January. No more classes on Hunter Safety are planned until next January. We hope everyone availed him or her self and is fully prepared to participate in the hunting season.

Those finishing the course Saturday include the following: Dennis Beeler; Frances Lynn Block; Robert Bowers; Roger Bowers; Joneta Buchler; Yvonne Castello; James Childs; Rex Cleveland; Rick Cleveland; Greg Corbett; Sigmund Csicsery; ses; Janice Williams; Michael Wood; Ronald Wood; Fritz Wright; Diana Lynn Wyllie; and Stephen Yatsko. Congratulations to the graduates; and Happy Vacation to Gary and his staff of dedicated instructors.

Todd Dyer; Gail Fairfield; Gary Gancas; Randy Gancas; Steve Garcia; Nancy Gleese; Shirley Gleese; Brian Harris; Gregory Harris; Kevin Hicks; Mark Holmes; Wade Jackson; Dan Jobrack;

Charlie Litz

I'VE HEARD a lot of pros and cons about how to use your deer tags. Here the ABCs of using those tags as suggested by the California Department of Fish and Game (DFG).

"Read the regulations on your deer tags," "Hunters should fill in their names and address on their tags before starting out," says Bernie Faist, chief of the DFG's warden force.

"Then they should read all the directions carefully, so they will know which tag to use after killing their deer. "Failure to understand the regulations and to use the proper tag could result in the loss of an opportunity to hunt deer in other areas of the state," Faist said.

There are three kinds of deer tags this year: The "option tag" — the blue one — can be used either to tag a buck taken in the early season area (zone A) or, by hunters whose names have been drawn in a statewide lottery, to obtain a permit for one of the state's nine special antlerless, either sex or archery hunts.

The "general tag" — the green one — can be used for deer taken either in the early season areas (zone A) or in zone B, D, or E seasons.

The "zone X tag" — Hunters wishing to hunt in the old district 1½ area in northeastern California must purchase a special zone X tag which is good only in that area. Persons buying the zone X tag cannot hunt in any of the state's other regular deer season areas. Zone X tags are on sale only at DFG offices.

Zone X hunters whose names are drawn for a special hunt can submit a special application issued with their tag, in lieu of the option tag used by hunters outside the zone X area.

THE 1975 EDITION of California's early deer season will open Saturday with prospects for more hunting success this year than last over most of the area that extends from Humboldt County on the north to northeast Los Angeles County in the south.

Again this, the fire hazard is extreme throughout the open area. Hunters are advised to be on the lookout for fire closures and special restrictions on the use of fire.

Also, you are reminded that most of the early season area is private land and permission is required to hunt.

The early season will continue through Sunday, Sept. 14, with a lion bucks forked horn or better Hunters are required to have a valid 1975-76 hunting license ($10) and deer tags ($3) in their possession.

Following is a partial list of counties, with a forecast by the DFG on conditions expected:

HUMBOLDT: Buck take is expected to be low, about the same as last year. Many will still be in velvet. Deer hunters can expect to find hot, dry hunting conditions, dusty roads and high fire danger. Public access for the unattached hunter is confined primarily to the Bureau of Land Management lands in the vicinity of King's Peak.
